WILL WEAVER IS NOT RECOGNIZED

The howl against Speaker Randall that vent up from the Greenbackers because went up from the Greenbackers because he did not recognize Weaver last Monday to present his resolutions will probably be repeated, because that worthy was not recognized to-day, when he tried to get, the floor. The Speaker, however, has done Mr. Weaver no injustice. On Monday there are always about forty or fifty members who want to suspend the rules just as Mr. Weaver does, and the Speaker, if so disposed, could not recognize the half of them, and besides the sense of the House being averse to all such agitation as would be offered, would cut it off by adjournment. But in order to facilitate the public business by utilizing Monday's session, the Speaker has adopted a rule that is perfectly fair to all parties, and one in which both Republicans and Democrats almost universally acquiesce. This rule is that instead of recognizing individual members to present their peculiar schemes he will only recognize members of committees to present their peculiar schemes he will only recognize members of committees to present reports that they have been instructed to submit by their committee. Under the operation of this salutary rule Mr. Weaver has no more ijust ground of complaint against the Speaker than has Fernando Wood, the leader on the Democratic side, or any other member on the floor, he did not recognize Weaver last Monday other member on the floor, ng no announcement had been made of a lisplay by either the Ulks or Memphi in the celebration of Mardi Gras, the streets have been crowded all day with visitors from the adjoining towns. About 500 maskers appeared during the afternoon, but there was no parade of the societies. To night a grand ball, equal in elegance to those given by the Memphi, is in progress at the Cabrieus Theatre; also one at the exposition building, where it is estimated that fully $,000 are in attendance. The day has been delightful.

Trived vesterday and was received royally. The procession included a body guard of United States troops and the local military. First came the band of the royal household, then the Assyrian warriors driven. First came the band of the royal household, then the Assyrian warriors driven in charlots, followed by generals, priests, astrologers and other attaches. Then in a gorgeous charlot came Rex as Shalmanezr, the Assyrian conqueror. The royal charlot was closely followed by His Majesty's favorite band of the Thirteenth Infantry and a royal division of troops. The pageant proper came next in the shape of twenty magnificent cars, representing the four elements of creation. Then came a burlesque of the German Leidertafel and the Phorty Phunny Phellows and the miscellaneous masquers. The streets along the line of the procession were acrowded with spectators. Thousands of strangers are in the city.

Rex's reception at the Exposition Hall tonight is a great success, 5,000 persons being present. The procession of the Mystic Krewe of Comas tonight illustrated phases in the history of the Astect people and their conquest by Cortes by sixteen tableaux on floats. The exhibition concluded with tableaux at the Opera House and a grand ball, which was attended by 2,000 people. It was a magnificent affair.

DEFEAT OF THE REAGN BILL.
The Reagan bill was killed in the Committee on Commerce by a vote of eight to seven, after a stormy session. McLane withdrew his substitute providing for a commission, and Kenna moved that the Reagan bill be reported to the House, reserving to each member of the Committee
the right to vote in the House for or against the bill, either as a whole or with regard to any amendment or part thereof.
The bill was voted down, as follows:
Yeas, Reagan, Kenna, Turner, Acklen, Beale, Clardy and Henderson—seven;
nays, Bliss, Ross, McLiane, Deuster, O'Neil, Wait, Townsend, Russell—eight. Reagan then requested the Committee to authorize him to make an adverse report. Bliss moved to reconsider, his object being to defeat this proposition and effectually kill the bill in committee, but pending the action, the House being in session, the Committee adjourned to meet on Friday.
